Overview

This lunchtime session provides practical tools and insights to help individuals understand and effectively manage stress in both personal and professional contexts. Participants will gain clarity on what stress is, the forms it can take, and strategies for reducing its negative impact.

Key topics in this exciting session include:

- Defining personal stress
- Techniques for reducing personal stress
- Understanding stress
- Types of stress
- External and internal stress
- Effects of stress: short-term and long-term impacts
- Signs of stress: physical and emotional indicators

Benefits of attending

By the end of the session, participants will be able to:

- Recognise the sources and signs of stress in your lives
- Understand the different types of stress and their potential impacts
- Apply practical techniques to reduce and better manage stress

Who should attend?

- Professionals experiencing workplace stress or fatigue
- Managers, HR teams, and leaders responsible for employee wellbeing
- Anyone noticing symptoms of exhaustion, negativity, or reduced performance
- Individuals juggling high personal and professional demands.
- Anyone else seeking practical tools to prevent and manage burnout

Presenter

Claire Mould

With over thirty years' experience of working in and with the public, corporate, and charitable sectors, Claire has expertise in providing strategic, analytical, emotionally intelligent solutions that engender, inform, facilitate and embed growth through compassionate leadership.

Extending from post-doctoral studies on neurology, specifically the link between emotional intelligence and cognitive intelligence, Claire has written, presented, and worked at a national, European, and international level and has published several research papers and books.

In her previous time as a CEO of various charities, she has practical experience in the art of compassionate leadership and has developed a real passion for helping individuals and organisations to optimise their growth potential.

In addition to her work as a facilitator, delivering sessions and presenting, Claire also works as an independent consultant providing emotionally intelligent strategic solutions, embedding compassionate leadership and maximising growth.

In her spare time, Claire runs for mental health and wellbeing, including running marathons and ultra marathons.

Reviews

Content, presentation and speaker - All good. In my role as a manager, I have/or am learning or being challenged with the current expectation of protecting mental health of my team who may have a different perspective, and I find it hard to balance this in my management approach. I loved this speakers authenticity and vulnerability as [it] helped us to relate as the listener.
